

DOH STATEMENT TO WATERFRONT ON SEPT. 20, 2022

The draft regulations recommended by New York's Drinking Water Quality Council are nearing the final stages of the regulatory approval process. In the coming weeks, we expect the notice of proposed rulemaking to be posted in the State Register, after which the proposed regulations will undergo a 60-day public comment period followed by agency review and response to comments before being considered for formal adoption by the Public Health and Health Planning Council.
