

Michael Youhana, Senior Associate Attorney at Earthjustice:

“The Court dismissed 'without prejudice,' meaning that the court left us with discretion to re-file the case. We continue to believe that Greenidge is violating federal Clean Water Act standards and are weighing our options for next steps. We and our clients continue to worry about the impacts to Seneca Lake and the Keuka Lake Outlet from the power plant's pollution discharges as well as the facility's cooling water intake structure.:

Yvonne Taylor, Vice President of Seneca Lake Guardian:

“Those of us who live in the Finger Lakes experience Greenidge’s blatant disregard for our natural resources every day, no matter what the court says. This failing company is accelerating climate change, harming our environment, and threatening the Finger Lakes $3 billion, 60,000-employee local agritourism economy. Governor Hochul and the DEC recognized this last year when they denied Greenidge’s air permit renewal. We won’t stop fighting to get this corporate bully out, and to protect everything that makes the Finger Lakes special,” said
